LAWNGTLAI DLSA

1. IMPLEMENTATION OF NALSA SAATHI SCHEME

As part of the ongoing efforts under the NALSA Saathi Scheme, Lawngtlai DLSA and members of the Saathi Unit conducted an exercise to identify children who had not been enrolled under Aadhaar. This initiative was in alignment with the objectives of the NALSA (Protection and Enforcement of Rights of Children) Scheme, which aims to safeguard the rights of children by ensuring their access to government welfare schemes and essential services.

During the course of this drive, a total of 75 children were identified as not having Aadhaar cards. Upon further inquiry, it was found that out of these, 68 children had not applied for Aadhaar primarily due to religious beliefs and faith-based reasons, as expressed by their families. These children, despite being eligible, were deliberately not enrolled owing to concerns or reservations rooted in religious convictions. Two other children had previously attempted to apply for Aadhaar; however, their applications remained incomplete due to technical issues related to fingerprint detection.

The remaining five children were actively supported by the DLSA in completing their Aadhaar enrollment. The DLSA took steps to facilitate the documentation process, liaised with local Aadhaar enrollment centers, and ensured the children were accompanied and guided through every stage of the application. The assistance provided helped these children move forward in securing their Aadhaar cards.

In addition to facilitating direct applications, the DLSA also engaged with the families of those who had chosen not to apply due to religious beliefs, initiating discussions aimed at raising awareness about the importance of Aadhaar in accessing public services such as education, healthcare, and welfare benefits. For the two children whose fingerprints could not be captured, the DLSA reached out to relevant UIDAI officials to explore alternative identification and authentication mechanisms to ensure that these cases are addressed appropriately.

This intervention under the NALSA Saathi Scheme underscores the critical role of legal services institutions in bridging gaps between vulnerable populations and government schemes. It also highlights the necessity of sustained community engagement, especially in areas where social or religious beliefs may pose challenges to universal documentation coverage. The DLSA remains committed to continuing its outreach efforts and ensuring that every child, regardless of background, has the documentation necessary to access their rights and entitlements.
